SPECTRUM — Thursday, March 23 (Flyers' News Service)

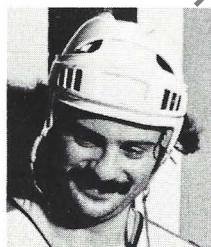

The Flyers currently are in second place in the Vezina race behind Montreal. The Flyers have a 2.55 goals-against average compared to the Canadiens' 2.32. . . . Since January 31 when the Flyers were in fifth place in the Vezina race with a 2.63 mark, they have allowed just 53 goals in 22 games for an average of 2.41 a game. (not including Monday's game against the Islanders). Montreal has played 23 games since January 31, allowing 61 goals for a 2.65 average. . . . Bernie Parent has lowered his average to 2.26, which is second in the league to Montreal's Ken Dryden, who has a 2.15 mark. Wayne Stephenson in 24 games is carrying a 2.78 average. "Everyone has been working together for us to get an average like that," said Flyers' assistant coach Pat Quinn. . . . Tommy McVie watched the Rangers score eight goals on 28 shots against his Washington Capitals and offered: "The Rangers have a tough road ahead of them, but if they make the playoffs they're going to be mighty tough." . . . "We have

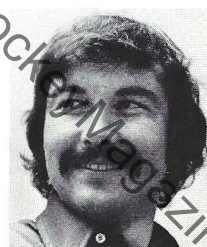

Jacques Plante

Tom Bladen

Orest Kindrachuk

three tough weeks to go," said Phil Esposito. "But we'll be there in the playoffs. That I promise." . . . "All we've lacked is consistency," said Esposito's right winger, Mark Heaslip. "Now we've got to string a few more wins together." . . . While the Flyers were hosting Buffalo last Saturday before the customary 17,077, the Firebirds were playing the Maine Mariners at the Civic Center before 8,018 spectators. That's a total of 25,095 fans who saw the games in Philadelphia that night, a record for the Delaware Valley area. . . . Many hockey observers claim the greatest hockey team in the history of the NHL was the Montreal Canadiens' team that won five consecutive Stanley Cups between 1956 and 1960. Jacques Plante, the Flyers' goaltending coach, was the Canadiens' netminder during that period. Plante won the Vezina Trophy all five years with averages of 1.86, 2.02, 2.11, 2.18 and 2.54. If Plante had been hurt in a game, he would have been replaced by Jacques Beauchamp, who was the Canadiens' practice goaltender and hockey writer for the Montreal Journal. "I thought I was going to play a couple of times but that Plante just wouldn't come out," said Beauchamp, who now is editor-in-chief of the Philadelphia Journal. "He was a great goaltender." Plante and Beauchamp shared numerous Stanley Cup thrills during their careers. They would like nothing more than adding Philadelphia to their list of Stanley Cups. . . . The stork will be visiting the Tom Bladons, Wayne Stehpensons, Paul Holmgrens and Bobby Taylors shortly. . . . While the Flyers are on their four-game road trip, rookie Kevin McCarthy will be working his way back from a sprained right knee. He hopes to return before the regular season ends on April 9 against Minnesota. Orest Kindrachuk (knee-ankle injury) and Andre Dupont (shoulder injury) are expected back some time before the end of the regular season.

The Flyers Post-Game Show.

After every televised Flyers game, the action continues with the Post-Game Show on Channel 29. And no real Flyer fanatic would ever miss it. Gene Hart and Bob Taylor provide a blow-by-blow account of all the highlights. The goals. The penalties. The really big plays. And a live interview with the Flyers star of the game.

It's all any Flyer fanatic could ask for. And it's all brought to you by FinanceAmerica, the company that wants to put a jingle in your pocket when you need a loan.

Quinn Not Standing Pat

The last place Pat Quinn expected to find himself that Sunday night was behind the bench coaching the Flyers. True, the team was only playing Colorado, not one of the NHL's better teams. But the Rockies had already beaten the Flyers once during the year and in the stretch drive to try and overtake the Islanders, every game was important.

"I had butterflies but I always have butterflies before a game, even when I'm up in the press box," said Quinn, who replaced the late Barry Ashbee as the Flyers' defensive coach this season.

"It's funny, we (Fred Shero and him) had talked about my coaching a game or two in the beginning of the season, at training camp. But it never happened and then he came to me in the morning and asked me if I would like to go behind the bench."

Quinn jumped at the opportunity and the butterflies increased momentarily—but only momentarily—when Colorado jumped off to a 1-0 lead.

Stuck to Game Plan

"I didn't think there was any reason to panic because there was plenty of time left—two-and-one-half periods—and I knew we had the better hockey team. I just stuck to the game plan and I figured it would work out."

It did, too. The Flyers won the game, 6-2.

But for Quinn, it was more than just a game.

"Sure I was excited," said Quinn, whose vantage point for hockey games was the bench during a 12-year playing career that ended last season with the Atlanta Flames.

"All the other times when I have been on the bench I have had no control over the personnel, who my line-mates are. It's a lot different."

Normally, Quinn sits in the press box watching the game and joins the club between periods. Sometimes, he offers advice to Shero because of the better perspective one gets higher up in the stadium.

On this Monday, the two switched jobs but Shero only came to the locker room between the first and the second period.

Flyers Dominate

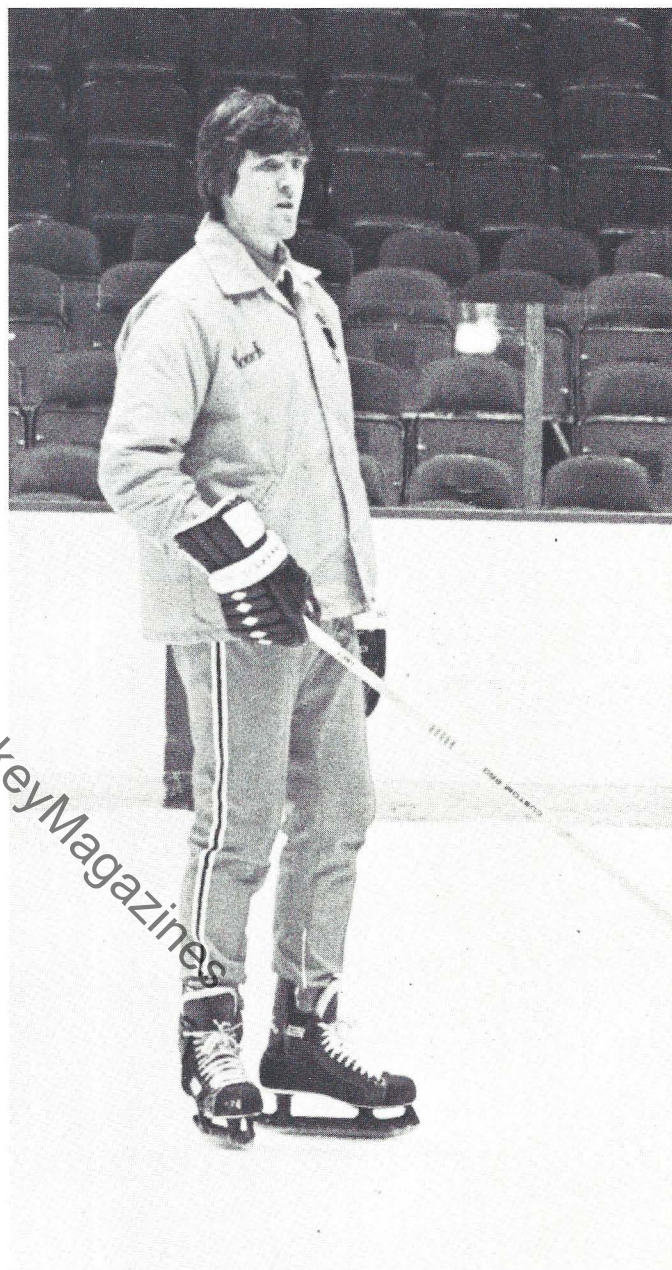

"I guess he wanted to hear what I told the boys," said Quinn, who didn't have to do much yelling. By the time the period ended, the Flyers were dominating the game and were leading, 2-1.

Letting others coach the team is nothing new for Shero, who occasionally had Mike Nykoluk behind the bench before Nykoluk moved this season from assistant coach to coordinator of player development.

"It's not so much the perspective as it is for the good of the coach," said Shero of his decision to watch the game from the press box. "You can't feel the emotion up there. You can't tell when a player is tired."

"But he's a coach, too and letting him get behind the bench for a game makes him feel he's contributing more. That's important to the overall effort. He does everything the way I would do it. He knows the players as well as I do now."

Indeed, the styles of the two men seemed identical

Pat Quinn
... contributes as coach

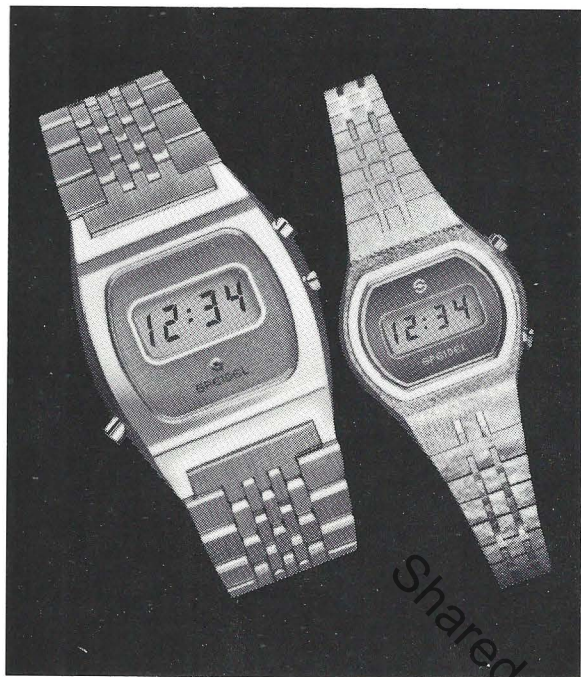

as Quinn juggled lines, mixing and matching his players.

"I did that a little more than I wanted to," said Quinn, "but we got hit pretty good by penalties. Freddie gave me full range to do what I wanted. He didn't put any restrictions on me at all."

Nevertheless, Quinn's debut had one drawback—a personal one. Quinn is not that far removed from his playing days and he knows every hockey player wants to play as much as possible.

"I wish we hadn't had those penalties to kill," explains Quinn. "I would have liked to give some guys more ice time. I was hoping everyone could play a lot."

Rangers, Espo Face Flyers April 6

by Joe Kadlec

"Phil Esposito combined reach, strength, intelligence and competitiveness to the degree that the only way he can be countered is with superbly coordinated defensive play."

That was a scouting report on the greatest scorer in the history of the NHL a few years ago.

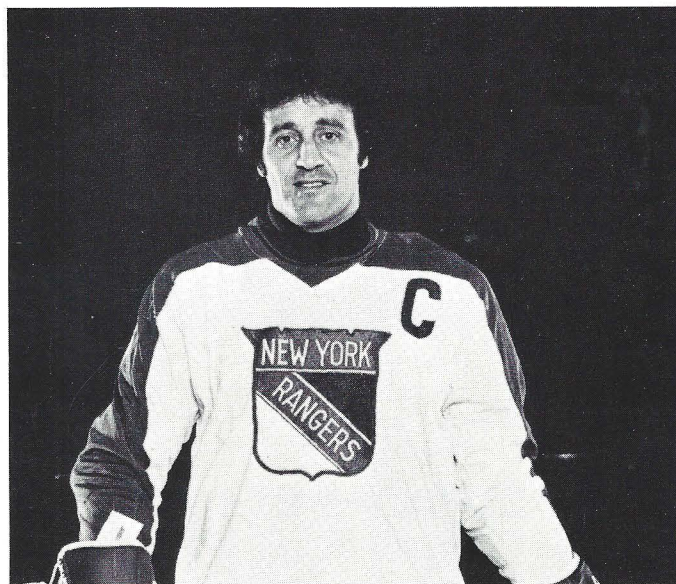

Esposito and the New York Rangers are the Flyers' next opponent at The Spectrum on Thursday, April 6, 8:05 p.m.

As a member of the Boston Bruins, Esposito set the NHL record for most points in a season with 152 in 78 games, playing on a line with Ken Hodge and Wayne Cashman.

Today, Esposito is center on a Rangers' line that has Mark Heaslip on right wing and Dan Newman on left wing.

"It's easy playing on Esposito's line now," says Heaslip. "Dan and I do most of the work in the corners. We bat the puck to death and then give it to Phil."

"Yeah," said Newman. "When we finish with the puck, it's square."

SCOTCH SO SMOOTH IT NEVER MAKES WAVES.

All good Scotch begins with the best of intentions and the finest of ingredients. It is in the delicate process of blending that differences are struck.

And in the taste of Cutty Sark there are striking differences.

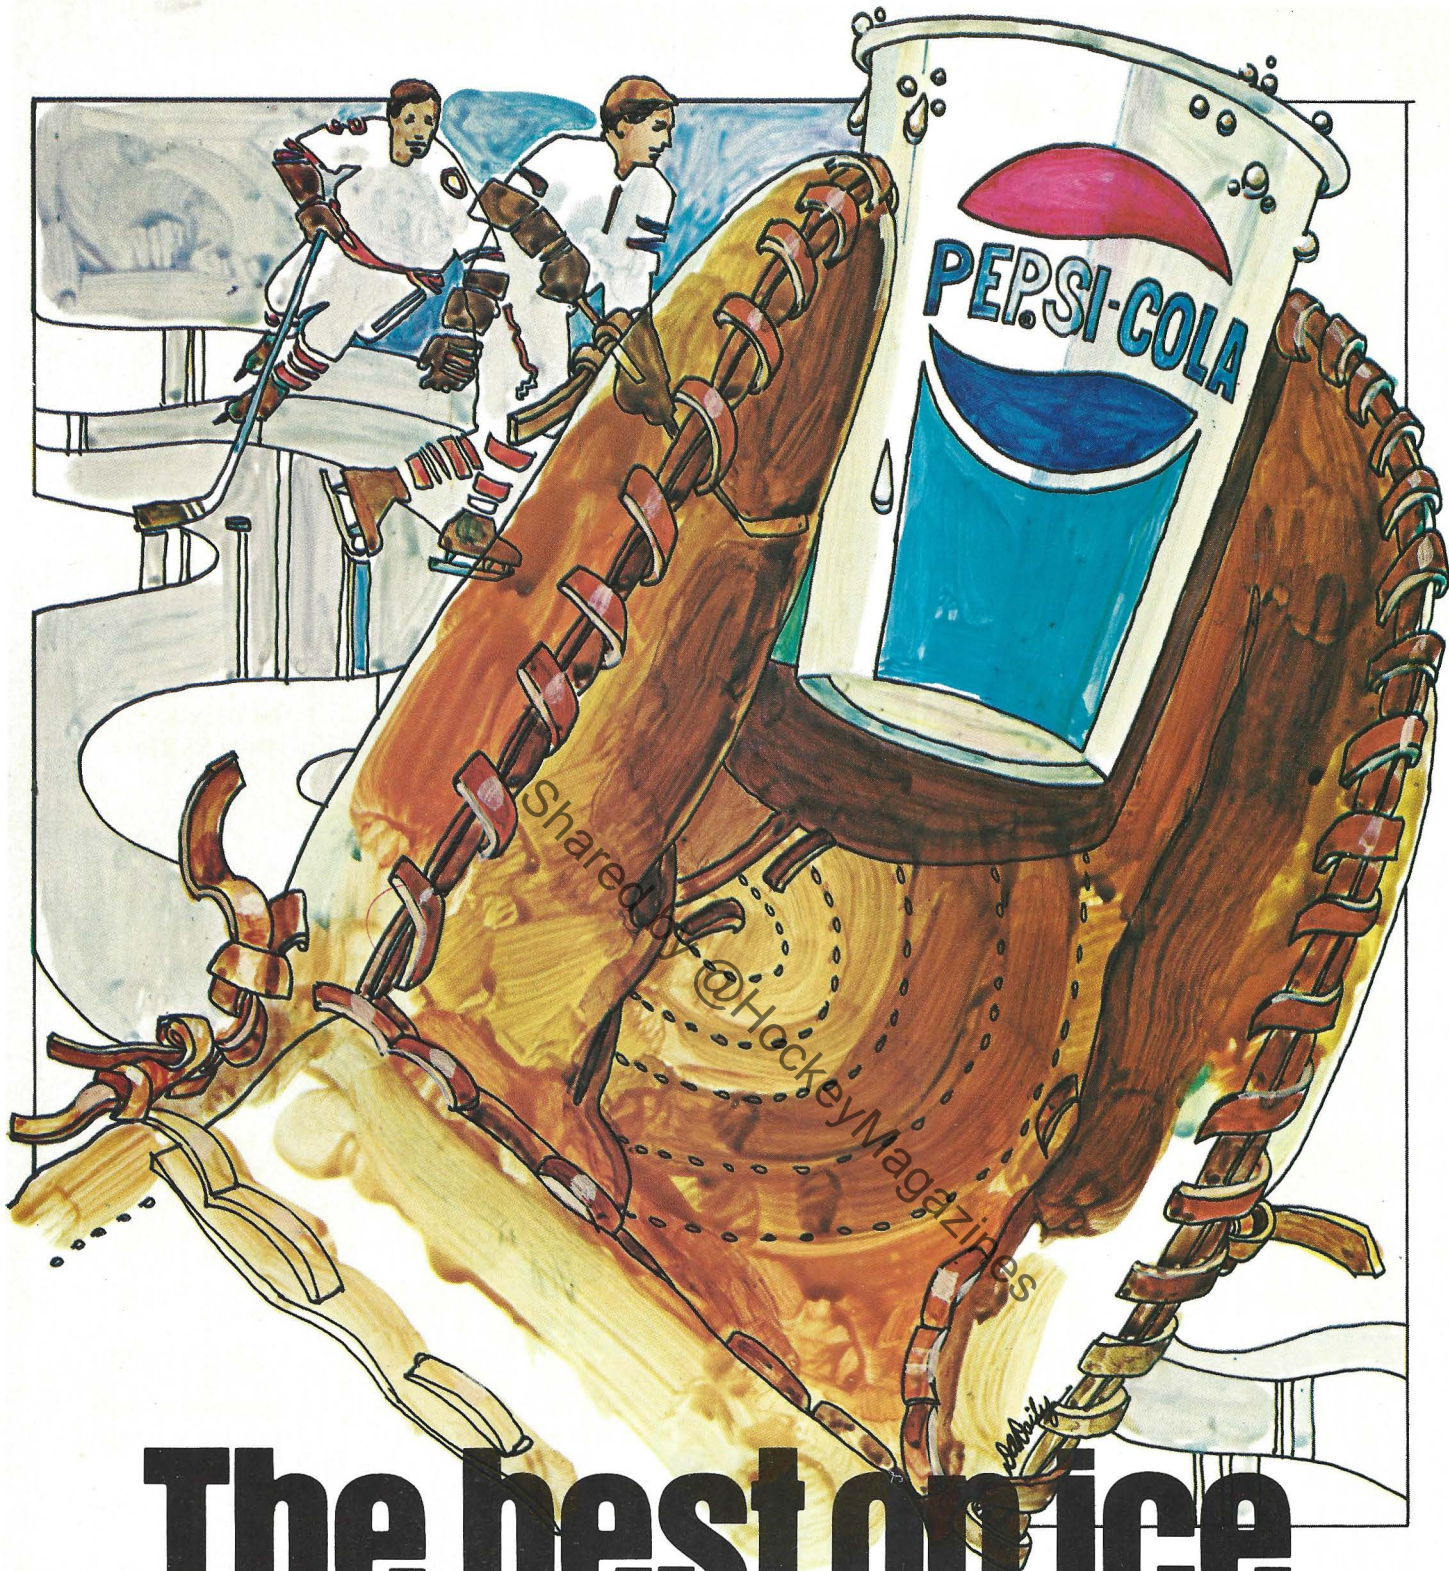

To make good Scotch, the whiskies comprising the blend are aged in separate oaken casks, then blended together. To make Cutty Sark, the whiskies are also aged separately, then blended together, then returned to cask for up to a year and a half longer. And only then bottled.

This results in a Scots Whisky whose elements are perfectly knit, with a taste that's unusually smooth.

And this is one reason why, whether you prefer Cutty Sark with water, with soda, or neat, it glides over the palate with nary a ripple.

The best on ice.

A flashing red light. A clean crunching check. There's nothing on ice quite like it. Except the cold, crisp taste of Pepsi-Cola. So grab yourself a Pepsi next time you yell up a thirst. Because Pepsi's got that breakaway flavor that beats the others cold.

Have A Pepsi Day...

When Teleprompter Cable TV demonstrates their great reception, guess which TV set they use.

Teleprompter is the nation's largest cable television company. With over 1,000,000 subscribers. In 32 states.

To get new subscribers, they're constantly giving demonstrations (like the one re-enacted above). In apartment lobbies, as well as shopping centers.

Naturally, they want the picture on that screen to look as perfect as it possibly can. So naturally, they use Sony color TVs. Exclusively.

You see, only Sony has the Trinitron Plus® "one-gun, one-lens" system. While other sets project their picture beams through three small lenses, Trinitron Plus uses one large lens. And a larger lens provides a sharper focused picture. (For a more detailed explanation of our system, write for our free brochure.)

Another reason Teleprompter uses Sony is durability. Understandably, they need a TV that can stand up to the pressure of being run day in and day out (not to mention being jostled around from place to place).

So take a tip from the people who can't afford to use anything less than the very best.

Don't you either.

Tiger, Tiger Burning Bright

Just about the last thing Tiger Williams wants to do is leave Toronto and the Maple Leafs. Still, that's got to be considered a real possibility just now. The Tiger still hasn't signed a new contract with Leafs and time is rapidly running short.

Technically, Williams is playing the current season under the option clause continued in the three-year contract the Leafs gave him when he became a professional in 1974. The normal time for renewal would have been the spring or summer of '77. But he, his agent and various club representatives haven't been able to reach agreement in months of on and off negotiations and if they don't work something out pretty soon, he'll become a free agent with the right to move anywhere in the National Hockey League.

"Aw, it's just business. We'll hammer it out sooner or later," is the reassuring word from The Tiger, who owns a home in Mississauga and is as fiercely loyal as the most steadfast Gardens workman. He feels he belongs at Church and Carlton, but that could change.

You must understand there's no hostility in this situation, at least not yet. It's just that Williams and his employers have different ideas about how much he should be paid and they're having trouble finding the level at which both sides can compromise. The Tiger isn't angry at anybody, nor has he any wish to alienate his bosses or burn any bridges behind him. On the other hand, he owes it to himself, as a pro athlete, to stand firm on his own self-estimate. Maybe if his agent were a Torontonian, the problem would have been solved by now. But since it hasn't been, The Tiger, who has no doubts whatever about his own abilities, is confident the Leafs will have to consider him more valuable this spring than they did a year ago. In other words, he won't be the one who loses on account of the delay.

And there's an obvious fact the Leafs should think about. Williams undoubtedly has. The Tiger's toughness and courage are assets many other NHL teams desperately need.

Witnessing the growth of Tiger Williams has been one of the pleasures to be savored while observing the Leafs at close range the past few winters.

He wasn't welcomed into the lodge when he first came here. He hadn't made the varsity immediately you'll recall. He'd gone to the minors and wasn't summoned to the NHL lineup until midterm. Some of the veterans who were with the team at that time shunned him. They let it be known they felt he was uncouth. He might order the wrong kind of wine or sip it through a straw, something like that. He'd tell anybody to go jump in the lake (or words to that effect) if he felt like it. On ice, he didn't seem to be much more than a roughneck, with little apparent skill.

Things have changed dramatically since then.

Under Darryl Sittler's captaincy, there are no cliques and no outcasts. The Leafs work hard at maintaining camaraderie and enthusiasm and Williams, having earned everybody's respect, is one of the leaders in that.

He's still no sophisticate but he knows how to read a menu now and does own a navy pinstripe. He is bluntly honest, without a ounce of pretense, and he's a very likeable man. You can't fail to be impressed by his affection for people important to him and his sense of responsibility where hockey and the Leafs are concerned.

... loyal to Toronto but unsigned

Teammates admire The Tiger's diligence in improving his craft and his utter fearlessness on the ice. Some of the penalties he takes are exasperating but that's a price which can be borne. They result from the combativeness and dedication to duty which make Williams so important.

Indeed, it's difficult to imagine this Toronto club without Williams. He's a rare commodity. Nobody concerned wants the stalemate to drag on and become serious. But it wouldn't be the first labor dispute to escalate out of control and become something neither party ever wanted.

THE PE TEAM RECORD FOR SERVICE RELIABILITY IN 1976...

Out of all possible hours of use in 1976, PE customers had electricity 99.991 percent of the time. This virtually perfect record is truly remarkable because many outages are caused by storms, vehicular accidents and other factors beyond our control. But when an electric outage does occur, PE's coordinated team effort brings the power back on as quickly as possible—and keeps it on. Reliability... it's something we work at round the clock... and our record shows it.

These three words have opened up a whole set of problems for the American motorist.

These three words solved them.

Unfortunately, most unleaded gasoline users have had to learn to take the bad with the good.

The good? Cleaner air and a cleaner-running engine.

The bad? Lack of pep and performance—even a disturbing knock.

Well, take heart. Because Getty Unleaded Regular actually provides the kind of performance you may have thought you'd never get from an unleaded. The power you used to get from old-fashioned leaded regular. Plus the clean-running smoothness of an unleaded gasoline.

And most important, Getty Unleaded Regular sells for less than most other major unleads.

So fill up with Getty Unleaded Regular. And get more power for less money.

Meet the real Fred Shero

Here's the coach in action, at training camps, practices, and games. Here are the revealing comments of friends, relatives, and players, both past and present. And here are Shero's favorite anecdotes and aphorisms. Here, in short, is a portrait of the sound hockey sense and the rare personal commitment that have made Fred Shero one of the game's winningest coaches.

What's Richie Ashburn

Well, Here's What Rich
Says About It —

Doing In Flyers' Territory?

"Dear Flyer Fans,

Most people don't know it, but after I quit playing baseball, I tried out for the Flyers. I almost made it, but I was beaten out by an unknown from up North—somebody by the name of Clarke. So now instead of playing hockey, I broadcast Phillies baseball on radio & TV.

When I'm not doing that, I'm promoting Winner Ford in Cherry Hill, N.J. They're real fine people at Winner and they don't put up with any monkey business. The Winner Ford people just want to sell cars & trucks at a fair price—fair to you and me, and fair to them.

At Winner Ford, there's none of this business about the big print giving and the small print taking away. Everything is fair and square.

But find out for yourself—and if you're not satisfied, write to me c/o Winner Ford or the Phillies. Maybe if I practice a little harder, I can crash that Flyer line-up."

As ever,
Rich

Long Live the King

He stands at the gate during practice and the Maple Leafs spray ice chips at him. They frown and scowl as they skate past him, gesturing with high sticks and butt ends. He puts his dukes up, ready to tangle, and then he and his tormentors laugh. He is 75 but he is still one of the boys.

If youth truly is wasted on the young, then King Clancy should be a wasted man by now. His young years passed by long ago, passed in long-forgotten arenas in battle with long-forgotten men. They had a night for him at Maple Leaf Gardens in 1934, on St. Patrick's Day of course; it was one of those occasions club owners now use to thank oldtimers for their services and to tell them to get lost.

King Clancy made the shortest speech of his life that night. They slid him out on a sled, costumed as Old King Cole, white beard, pipe and all. He was 31, ancient as defensemen go. He doffed his robe to reveal a green uniform with a white shamrock on the back and skated to the microphone; 11,000 spectators harkened.

"We are lost, the captain cried," Clancy said. He skated away. The match with the Rangers began.

He turned 50 in Pittsburgh, coaching the minor-league Hornets. They beat Syracuse that night in 1953, trounced them 8-1. One of the goal scorers for Clancy's Hornets that night was young John McLellan. Nineteen years later, McLellan, racked by ulcers at the age of 43, was forced to abandon his position as coach of the Maple Leafs. Clancy, 69, replaced him.

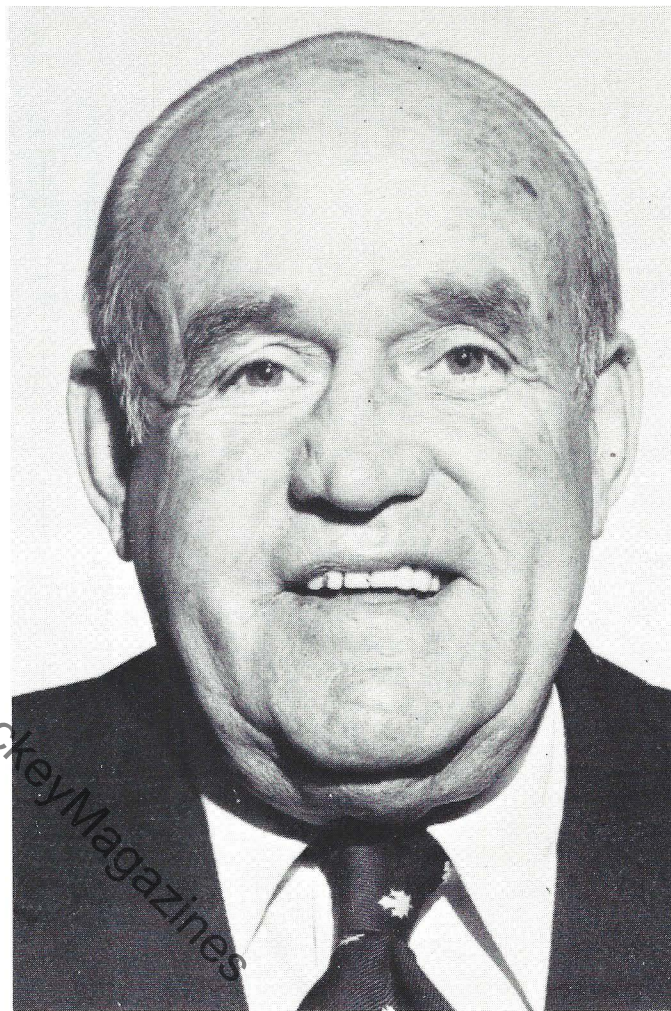

To most of us who came along in the television age, Clancy was the funny little guy who monopolized the intermissions whenever he appeared. The announcer would hand him the microphone and go for coffee, confident that the King would keep the viewers from tuning to Perry Mason or the Kraft Music Hall. We laughed at him; we never had seen him counsel a troubled young player or heard him sing Yessir That's My Baby as he skipped toward Customs and Immigration at 3 a.m. after a bumpy flight from Boston.

"The first time I met him was in Saskatoon when I was playing junior," says Lanny McDonald, who now wears Clancy's No. 7 for the Maple Leafs. "My family had always listened to the Leafs' games, so I knew what an important man he had been with the team, but meeting him, I thought, 'Wow! He has so much life in him.'"

Clancy can be seen at Maple Leaf Gardens when Toronto plays, pounding his gnarled fists on the sill of the private box behind the North goal. "I see him there all the time," says Frank Finnigan, "waving and laughing—I tell you, he's just about the same as when I first met him."

That was nearly 60 years ago in Ottawa, where the two young men were starring in the city's highly-competitive senior amateur leagues. Clancy preceded the younger Finnigan, a right winger, to the Ottawa Senators but both were established major leaguers by the time Ottawa won the Stanley Cup in 1927. They are the only survivors of that championship team. Later, both men moved to the Leafs.

"Yeah, he always had a lot to say, good gibberish, lots of fun," says Finnigan, 74, from the hotel he operates with his sons in Shawville, Que. "We shared a suite at the Royal York when I first went to the Leafs, cost us $1.11 a day. King had his car up there. He'd have a girlfriend and I'd get in the back seat and we'd drive the girl home, then we'd go out and have some fun.

Frank "King" Clancy
... young at heart

"Mind you, we didn't do anything wild in those days. Living in a hotel, you never knew who would be sitting in the lobby to say 'Hmm, there's Clancy and Finnigan and it's 5 a.m.' Conn Smythe always reminded us that there was a train waiting to take us to the minors.

"We had quite a set-up," Finnigan says. "We certainly had a good time. We never talked about our future, what would happen to us after we finished playing. He went into refereeing, of course, then they talked him into coaching—no, he never talked about staying in hockey this long."

Darryl Sittler, star center of the Maple Leafs, knows what Clancy wants these days. "He just wants us to win so badly," Sittler says. More than 40 years after hockey waved its King a fond salute, he still is able to delight in the sport he helped to build. At 75, he is not lost.

Tough choice

Marine Regular

You'll start with tough training. Because nobody likes to fight, but somebody has to know how. As a Marine Regular, you'll know how.

After boot camp, depending on your occupational specialty, you'll go to school or to on-the-job training to learn anything from air traffic control to telecommunications maintenance to food services. Or combat arms, the "cutting edge" of the Corps.

Stick with it, and you'll travel the United States and the world. You could even be part of an embassy detachment or serve as a sea-going Marine aboard command ships of the U.S. Navy. Ships like missile cruisers and aircraft carriers.

The Marine Corps offers a challenging, good-paying occupation. With free medical and dental care. And thirty days paid vacation every year.

And something else...the pride that comes only with earning the title: United States Marine.

The Marines

Marine Reserve

You'll start with tough training. Because nobody likes to fight, but somebody has to know how. As a Marine Reservist, you'll know how.

After boot camp, you'll continue your 130 days of active duty with more training. In fields like electronics, communications and combat arms. All the same opportunities that Regular Marines have.

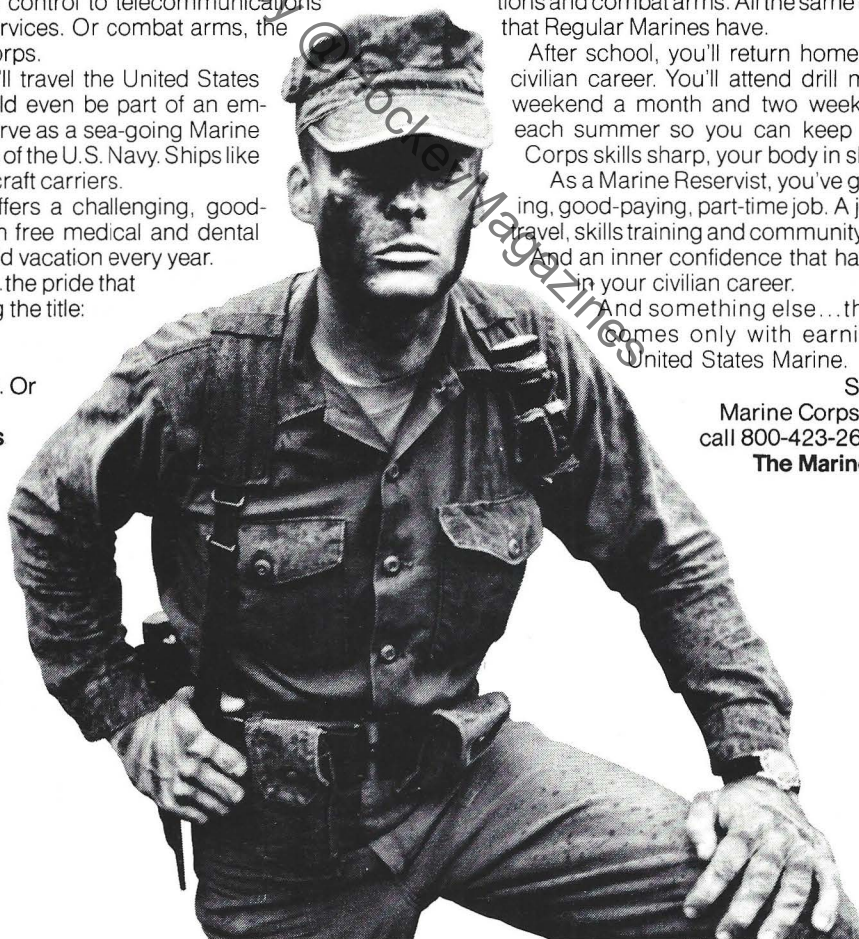

After school, you'll return home to pursue a civilian career. You'll attend drill meetings one weekend a month and two weeks of training each summer so you can keep your Marine Corps skills sharp, your body in shape.

As a Marine Reservist, you've got a challenging, good-paying, part-time job. A job that offers travel, skills training and community involvement. And an inner confidence that has to help you in your civilian career.

And something else...the pride that comes only with earning the title: United States Marine.

Touchin' Velvet.

There are a lot of whiskies out there. Straights. Blends. Canadians. But none can give you the exceptional feel of Black Velvet® Canadian Whisky. A premium import at a very reasonable price.

Try Black Velvet. And taste the Velvet difference.
